the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are undernourished has declined by 100 million.

But the world is still a long way from achieving the goal of eradicating hunger. In 1996, 800 million people were undernourished, and 2.5 billion people were malnourished. In 1990, 1.1 billion people were undernourished, and 2.2 billion people were malnourished. In 1980, 1.2 billion people were undernourished, and 2.3 billion people were malnourished.

There are many reasons why the world is still a long way from achieving the goal of eradicating hunger. One reason is that the world's population is growing rapidly. In 1990, the world's population was 5.3 billion. In 2000, the world's population was 6.1 billion. In 2010, the world's population is projected to be 6.9 billion.

Another reason is that the world's food production is not keeping pace with the world's population growth. In 1990, the world's food production was 2.5 billion metric tons. In 2000, the world's food production was 2.8 billion metric tons. In 2010, the world's food production is projected to be 3.1 billion metric tons.

There are many other reasons why the world is still a long way from achieving the goal of eradicating hunger. One reason is that the world's food distribution is not equitable. In 1990, the world's food distribution was 1.1 billion metric tons per person. In 2000, the world's food distribution was 1.2 billion metric tons per person. In 2010, the world's food distribution is projected to be 1.3 billion metric tons per person.

There are many other reasons why the world is still a long way from achieving the goal of eradicating hunger. One reason is that the world's food production is not sustainable. As Highland high approached the end of its third year, the already modern school began to take on a new look. Schools, like most organizations in America, were busy improving and modernizing themselves; Highland was no exception.

In March of 1960, the first addition, a modern and attractive 13 room wing, was begun. Students and teachers alike patiently continued their work amid crowded conditions and the noise of construction. Soon every-one discovered that the loads of steel and piles of wood cluttering the lawn and sidewalk just outside were taking the form of a new court, halls, and classrooms.

Now there was more room to grow intellectually and morally. The modern building housed up-to-date facilities which aided the faculty in molding the leaders of the future. Education became a pleasant experience for all concerned.

When school began last fall, HHS welcomed seven new teachers and a nurse to the excellently trained staff. It also added approximately 300 new students to the previously crowded halls and courses were added to the curriculum to challenge the minds of gifted or talented students.

Another topic in HHS football history was the initiation of its own football field, with the first Trojan win of the varsity season. This year it also had its first real homecoming with alumni returning from colleges and universities for the event.

At the home football games and in parades the band marched with more pep and precision as it proudly displayed the blue and gold of the new band uniforms. Another musical group the choir, worked diligently to earn enough money to purchase its first robes.

One of the new clubs formed this year was the Key club, a service organization for sophomore, junior, and senior boys. One of its major objectives was to serve the school and community with the assistance of the Kiwanis club.

Improvements were announced to the student body through the school paper, which came out bigger and better and was published through the efforts of many students.

Highland high received high scholastic honor when it was accepted into the North Central Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges and accredited as it first became a four year high school. Membership was granted on the basis of an excellent academic record and high standards in dress, behavior, and attitude which it endeavored to maintain.

Highland High is truly ever new. . . ever modern.

Our Highland High

NEW

Tediously striving towards success, Buddy Starceovich and Gary Crum concentrate on the minute details of their chemistry experiment.

Terry Loane and Jo Anne Golec return from an extensive tour of the incomplete addition.

Bill Vander Haar passes a personal inspection as he initiates his new band uniform before making his public debut.

Highland High School symbolizes all that is new and modern from architecture to student activities.

Obvious additions this year included new office aids, such as a coin separator and counter, physics equipment and the addition of an elective science - advanced biology.

Enthusiastic school spirit increased as the boys acquired new football jerseys and the new scoreboard was finally installed at our own football field - a long dreamed about addition.

Construction of the new wing will not soon be forgotten, especially by those students who had to share lockers in the crowded halls while it was being completed. The addition provided badly needed classroom area for the increasing enrollment.

Colorful new band uniforms gave added prestige at homecoming, the centennial parade and many concerts and football games. Two long years of soliciting were spent in reaching this goal - that the band would be as pleasing to look at as it is to listen to. The musical program was also enhanced by the formation of two new select choral groups, the Triple Trio and the Madrigals.

Many improvements loom obviously in our daily lives at HHS, but other additions are not so distinct. New students, teachers and clubs were less noticeable than, for example, the new wing. The instructors at Highland have always been the best available, as is proven by the number of alumni who are successfully attending college, and this year's staff additions were no exception.

Established clubs and organizations, even classes, injected spice into school life with new faces, and most important all new sponsors and officers. Highland's new Key Club, similar to a junior partner to the Highland Kiwanis club, was a rich, inciting influence. Composed of the "leaders of tomorrow," it offered a helping hand in many activities and projects such as aiding in preparations for College Night.

MODERN

New math equipment helps Mr. Clark explain the solution of a problem for Jerry Deleget.

Yesterday's dream is progressively becoming today's reality. The beautifully modern building the students approached each morning beckoned them to move into the future. Upon entering the spacious corridors, they found a sense of growing room and yet security as they moved about this architect's sketch in reality.

The ultra-modern architecture of the library illustrates the technique of the overall use of high ceilings, spacious windows, and interestingly modern interior decoration of the entire building. The attitudes of instructors, as well as the students, were lifted into this modern atmosphere which eased the task of education.

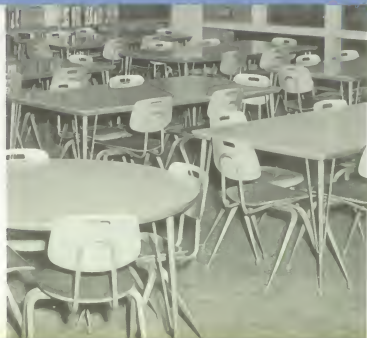

Whether it was the creative forming of modern art or the developmental functions of mathematics, the instructor and the student found the future becoming ever present through modern facilities.

This theme of modern simplicity is followed throughout the architecture and the facilities of Highland's ever-expanding high school. The future holds as many realities as have been realized by the administration, faculty, and students of today.

This is yesterday's future -- today -- and 'modern' is the by-line of all creations.

PRECEDENT

Jim Barenie and Sandy McCormack find lab work essential in advanced biology.

Highland is proud of the high ideals it has established and maintained in its short life. Precedents have been set, geared to our elevated standards.

The more promising students at Highland High enjoyed several advanced classes this year. Selected freshman were permitted to take biology and geometry, sophomore subjects and several sophomore students took advanced algebra, a junior subject. Senior math was on the schedule of a few superior juniors. A number of seniors enjoyed new laboratory equipment while taking advanced biology, which was added to the curriculum in the fall.

But high school life is not all work and no play. A soc-hop after a football or basketball game was a long awaited event which was attended by the majority of the students. All the past week's disappointments and failures were forgotten in the music and fun of the crowd at the dance.

As an acknowledgement of the fine sportsmanship displayed by students and athletes at the 1960 sectionals, Highland High received the treasured sportsmanship trophy. This trophy, located in the front showcase, served as an incentive for even better sportsmanship in all succeeding sports events.

A student's car being towed away was a scene witnessed by many amazed eyes. A new rule was enforced this year: cars without a parking permit in the school parking lot were promptly removed. Students wanting to drive to school had to see Mr. Robert E. Day, vice-principal, and give a good reason why a permit was needed before one could be obtained.

Advanced classes and the strict code of dress demonstrate why the Trojans have become the fine people they are.

The objectives which we reached in the past have set the precedent for those who will follow in the future.

Traditionally class rings are sported proudly by juniors, seniors, and alumni.

TRADITIONS

Throughout the year--from the time school convened to the spring when Commencement exercises will be held Highland high school had a full schedule of activities to maintain its traditions.

Students looked forward to proudly wearing a Highland class ring with the Trojan crest which symbolized attendance at a leading Indiana High school--a high school which offers a well-rounded social and recreational life so necessary to balance the academic program.

Homecoming highlighted the football season, and weeks before the event students were busy decorating floats and trying to make theirs good enough to earn the first place trophy. In addition to the parade, homecoming festivities included a bonfire, football game at which the homecoming queen was crowned, and a dance for alumni and students.

Whatever the individual social taste, one always found something to satisfy it at Highland high. Suppers and soc hops were given before and after many of the athletic events. "Almost Paradise," the 1960 junior-senior prom, was climaxed by the crowning of the king and queen.

The four years spent in high school were short years; at least seniors will feel that way when Commencement day rolls around. It will seem that just a little while before they were standing in line at the bookstore window checking the list of required freshmen purchases and wondering if they would ever make it through the next four years.

All the evenings of study and preparation for classes will suddenly become meaningful as they put on our caps and gowns and join classmates at Commencement. They'll bid adieu to friends and look to the future which Highland opened for them.

The will to win was ignited at the Homecoming bonfire by a tremendous backing of Trojan fans the night before the big game.

Needed for Graduation

Studies at HHS always look to the future. Students preparing for a good job and those planning to attend college found their future adequately planned through the facilities at Highland.

Instructors and students concerned with a commercial course found the future ever present in opportunity and the modern equipment at their disposal.

Business courses included academic solids as well as clerical classes designed to give the student actual contact with machines and situations encountered in the business world. Adding machines and electric typewriters aided the teachers in explaining clerical techniques.

Manual shop classes combined with a schedule of good solid courses provided a well-rounded educational experience for boys at all grade levels. By sharing tools and machines, the boys learned cooperation with and consideration of the other person—two characteristics important in becoming good citizens.

The mathematics department also played an important part in preparing college-bound students for institutions of higher learning. Besides the standard courses seniors enrolled in advanced mathematics courses consisting of the study of trigonometry, logarithms, oblique triangles, college algebra, and some analytical geometry.

Offer Us Challenges

The academic importance of high school is taken seriously by both teachers and students. This is an essential attitude for the educational systems of today are molding the minds of the citizens of tomorrow.

Two of the most modern rooms contain the cooking and sewing units for the home economics classes. Cooking is an age-old art which Highland has modernized by teaching girls how to use appliances found in the modern home. The girls used acquired knowledge of the past to reproduce the styles of today's fashion-conscious world. Use of recently developed, time-saving devices was taught and applied daily. The most modern of facilities from garbage disposals to button-holders plus the qualified teachers made home economics courses a must in forming the homemaker and wife of tomorrow.

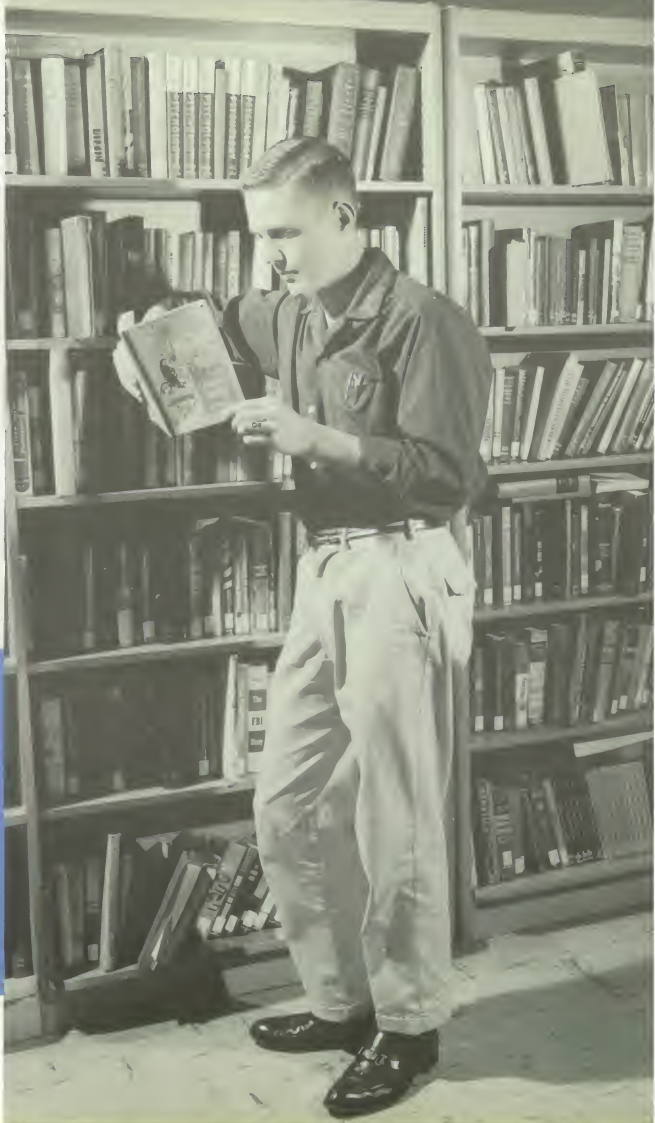

Science laboratories equipped with the best apparatus for observations and experiments aid students in precise experiments. Science is an ever changing field of study, and the students at HHS were kept well-informed on the newest developments in all phases of the scientific world. Five courses of science were offered to high schoolers this year: two, biology and health & safety were state required subjects, while chemistry, physics, and advanced biology were electives.

Mechanical drawing was a part of the curricula aimed at the future. In these classes, one found boys busy mastering the fundamentals of architecture. Experience in working with drawing instruments was abundant and the best artistic imaginations were given a good workout.

Schools are the building blocks of our nation's future and because of this HHS believes in advancement. The administration is primarily interested in instructing the students in the modern concepts of philosophy, engineering and liberal arts. Thus, one can understand why the academic life at Highland is constantly expanding and growing in depth. The teachers and subjects are full of resources which are being exploited to their zenith.

High-ranking senior Bob Palmer finds supplementary material for his English literature course in the high school library.

Highland High School has opened the doors of learning for 1248 students and alumni.

Studying consumed countless hours of high school life, but we found time to include the necessary social life, and studies gave us the well-rounded personalities needed in the young men and women of America today.

Valedictorian and salutatorian distinction was obtained by persistent work. Highland also furnished opportunities for top-flight students to attend conventions, seminars and councils to get first-hand information and practical experience in academic fields.

Indiana University was the home of three junior boys and three junior girls while they attended a week at Boy's State and Girl's State and gained practical governmental experience in June. Top Trojan journalists gained a realm of journalistic knowledge sharing ideas with new friends from four states at I.U.'s two-week Journalism Institutes for newspaper and year-book workers.

During Easter vacation a junior history student traveled to Washington D.C. for the Indiana Council of World Affairs, a series of tours, seminars and discussions concerned with government.

Trojans Enjoy Supporting Their Teams

SCHOOL LIFE

Football is one of the most popular sports at HHS. It is the sport of matching one team's brawn, brains and speed against another's.

Although the players sometimes resent the daily practice after school, they take great pride in their coach, and individual accomplishments; at the end of the season they feel that the personal satisfactions gained by team membership justify their dynamic effort.

The vivacious Trojan cheerleaders play an important part in school life. Never conceding defeat until the game is over, they lead the students in rallying the team to victory.

The individual cheerleader makes an interesting picture. There are times of tension and anxiety while a field goal is being completed; but there are also times of ecstatic joy as the team is victorious at the end of a close game. The many moods of a cheerleader are illustrated in the face of Peggy Goolik, varsity cheerleading captain.

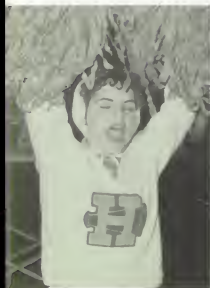

Early in the morning, the cooks are busily at work preparing the meal for the day. They prepare good and nourishing meals, working in their uniforms behind the spotless counters and in the modern kitchens. The food is a tempting sight for Highland high students after a long morning of classroom studies. The cooks have a reputation for being fast and efficient and thus are always ready to serve the hungry students waiting in the long lunch line.

This slow moving lunch line of famished Trojans is begun at 11:45 each day by the eighth graders. These underclassmen are the first to smell and taste the tempting menu of the day. The next class to join the never ending line are the freshmen, at 12:00.

At 12:05 the starving upperclassmen are permitted to invade the lunch line in hopes of FOOD! Since the lunch line at Highland high is always so long and ever growing, many are tempted to cut. This, as they know, usually proves futile, for teachers are always on the look-out and sending cutters to the end of the line.

a Busy Day of Study and Organized Activity

Cars, cars, and more cars. The school parking lot was literally overflowing with vehicles of all possible shapes, sizes, and colors during the year. After the busses dropped their "commuters" and left in the morning, the driveway became cluttered with the cars of parents taking students to school. Busses added to the atmosphere of general confusion in the after-school traffic jams.

In extra-curricular activities, these modes of transportation proved to be extremely popular and useful. Cars provided the students with ways to and from various school functions. Familiar busses carried students to out-of-town games. The '60 Homecoming parade was enlarged by the presence of many beautifully decorated cars. The following night a motorcade, with the queen candidates in the lead, formed at the school; it then proceeded on to the Griffith field for a victorious game.

Popular stopping spots were essential to "catch up on the latest." Drinking fountains drew students their way throughout the day... not only for cooling refreshment but also because they were the scene of many between-class rendezvous.

Showcases, scattered throughout the building, were used to exhibit projects from shop, home economics, science, and geography classes to mention a few, and they carried themes urging the Trojans on to victory. They kept students up to date on what was being done in classes during the school year... perhaps some of the exhibits served as an incentive for students to work harder. Changed or alternated frequently, they were constant points of interest.

Trojan gridders burst through the hoop and on to victory.

In the height of the fall season, the routine of school life was joyfully put aside for the excitement of homecoming. As the floats crept down the streets in the homecoming parade toward the bonfire, there was an atmosphere of suspense and nervous expectation as students awaited the announcement of the winning float. "Hold That Line," cleverly carried out as the theme of the junior class, earned the trophy for them.

Although the band was unable to march and entertain the crowd at halftime as the result of an uncooperative weatherman, the activities and excitement continued with the announcement of the homecoming queen. Linda Bewley, winner of that most coveted honor, followed in the footsteps of Barbara Fiegle, last year's homecoming queen, as she was crowned during halftime ceremonies.

The climax of the evening came as the crowd cheered the fighting Trojans as they defeated the Hammond Tech Tigers, to win the last varsity football game of the season.

At the homecoming dance, where queen Linda and her court reigned, the football players were honored for their past gridiron performances, as an anti-climax to a hard-fought season and successful homecoming.

Commencement Opens a New Phase of Life

"Goodnight, sweetheart; well, it's time to go."

Prom, the close of a day, and desolate halls all mark the beginning of an end.

A stary night, rustling formals, and the fragrance of perfume provided the atmosphere for a perfect prom.

Although the prom is the end of the year socially, it is truly the beginning. . . .beginning of the appreciation of finer things. It means an enfatuating night for one couple as they are crowned prom king and queen; and it marks the end of four never-to-be-forgotten years for the graduating seniors.

As we stand at the end of the hall and look through the gates, we see an empty, secluded Highland high. But our thoughts turn, not to the emptiness, but to the pleasant memories which it holds for us. We stand here and see our past, present, and look to the future with fond desires to truly mark the beginning of an end.

Only vacant beauty and haunting memories will fill "senior hall" after Commencement.

ACTIVITIES

Students of HHS filled their Wednesday activity periods by attending club meetings, convocations and other activities. The weekly periods of relaxation were a welcome change from the mental strain of daily classes.

Science club and the Spanish club were organized to academically benefit their members.

The Future Business Leaders of America and the Future Teachers of America offered perfect deviation from the routine for students interested in the fields of business and teaching as a career.

Band, Choir, Drama club and the Sign Painters club furnished expressive media for students of artistic, dramatic, and musical natures.

Booster club was the instrumental organization in supporting the Trojan teams at games and meets in their respective sports. It also played an important part in maintaining the high standards of sportsmanship which was already a precedent at Highland High games.

Y-Teens' primary interest was providing a firm moral foundation for its members. This was also true of the Student Council, but it was primarily interested in the welfare of the entire student body.

Service groups such as the librarians, office aids and monitors worked hard and took over small responsibilities of the administration and faculty.

Last but certainly not the least variety of student activities was publications work. Staff members of the Trojanian, newspaper, and Shield, yearbook, worked long, hard hours giving up free time to maintain the high standards for publications at Highland High.

Student Council Reorganized for Efficiency

Student Council has just completed a year marked by vast reorganization. Revision of the constitution laid the foundation for a series of other alterations which were aimed at promoting a better student-faculty relationship.

Representatives from each class formed a caucus and chose a caucus chairman and vice-chairman from their group of members; they chose two alternates from their respective classes. Steve Eastham, chief clerk, recorded the presence and voting preferences of all caucus members, which was reported to him at specific times during the meetings by caucus chairman.

Since Student Council was founded in 1957, its membership has grown to 27. There were only 26 members in the fall, but one more senior was elected and 22 more members were chosen in the spring to serve for the remainder of the year with the old Council and to serve half of next year. Membership for the respective classes was: eighth grade, four representatives; freshman, four; sophomore, five; junior, six; and senior, eight.

Sponsoring the leadership conference and governing the student body and all activities were two important functions of the council this year.

National Honor Society is a national organization for high school students who have excelled in academic activities. The citizenship and leadership abilities which students demonstrated and the services which they performed for the school also became important when qualifications for membership were being approved.

In co-operation with Key Club, Student Council, and Drama Club, Honor Society joined in the preparation and presentation of the Christmas convocation. On Recognition Day, sponsored by members in the latter part of the spring, deserving individuals received scholarships and other honors.

During the "Hoosier Hysteria" of basketball season, NHS members sold booster buttons prior to the Holiday Tournament. Student and adult backers alike, proudly sported the buttons which bore the label, "I'm a Highland Trojan Booster." The tutoring of students who sought guidance was another service offered by members.

Nineteen members were led through the past year by Graham Siegel, NHS president; Barry Zimmerman, vice-president; Joanne Hamilton, secretary; JoAnne Golec, treasurer; and Mr. Dean Speicher and Mr. Robert Kellam, sponsors.

Crowning a purposeful year was the spring banquet for members and their dates; juniors who became members during the second semester attended for their first taste of Honor Society activity.

One of the moves toward progress was the establishment of the Key Club. Formed through the special efforts of Mr. James A. Hedges, member of the local Kiwanis, it is now under the leadership of Mr. John Fruth and Mr. Allen J. Warren. Thus it is jointly sponsored by school officials and the Highland Kiwanis Club and affiliated with Key Club International.

Membership was open to all who maintain a "C" average or better. In its first year, the Key Club was led by: Barry Zimmerman; president, Mike Burroughs; vice-president, Bob Palmer; secretary, and George Brant, treasurer.

Each member strove to uphold the goals which are responsible for the club's existence. The goals are: 1. to provide an opportunity for the members to learn more about their community through the guidance of leading business and professional men of the community, 2. to develop initiative, leadership ability, and good citizenship practices, and 3. to provide services for students and teachers and undertake projects to benefit the entire community.

In reaching its goal, the club prepared Christmas baskets for needy families, provided music for dancing in the cafeteria at noon, and assisted in the College Night program.

Glen Gray and Mary Kay Huston devote an afternoon to making posters for the Blue Mist Evening Club dance.

During the course of two semesters, dramatists attended plays presented by other schools in the area. In addition, members went to Chicago to see the play "Kiss and Tell" at the Jack and Jill Playhouse in October.

Senior members portrayed "'Twas the Night Before Christmas" in pantomime before the student body in a convocation prior to the Christmas vacation. Without anyone's assistance, they took it upon themselves to put the skit together with only a few days of rehearsing.

In February, during sectional week, the young dramatists showed their abilities by providing the students with a dance in the form of a nightclub, "The Blue Mist Evening Club." This extra-curricular function gave couples opportunity to come to a special activity in their best clothes.

To enlighten the minds of those interested in the dramatic field was the goal of Drama Club. Under the leadership of their four officers Pat Zeman, president; Roger Hickman, vice-president; Kay Wagman, secretary; and Glen Gray, treasurer; members promoted their interest in dramatics. Mrs. JoAnn Henderson, speech instructor, sponsored the group. On April 20 and 21, the thespians presented their annual spring play. Under the capable direction of Mrs. Henderson, they not only provided the audience with good entertainment, but added needed funds to their treasury.

Ice Follies, Sold Potato Chips at Noon

Mary Kay Huston, Kitty Lien, and Jamie Sullivan munch potato chips sold by Y-Teens during lunch hour while waiting for customers.

First organized in 1957, this year the Y-Teens, a branch of the Young Women's Christian Association, strove to build a better club for its members through its officers and sponsor. This teen version of the YWCA is included in the organization's activities and is considered an active part of the national club.

Plans were laid by the sponsor Miss Phyllis Bates and the officers Jamie Sullivan, president Louise Schmidt, vice-president; Nancy Jones, secretary; and Nancy Nyquist, treasurer, to reorganize the club for more efficiency by forming a cabinet. This cabinet was composed of the officers and appointed committee chairmen to form committees that were needed to carry out all Y-Teen activities. The finance, program, social, and publicity committees worked to make re-organization complete.

Membership consisted of approximately 50 high school girls who divided their activities between service and fun. In January, students were heard and seen in the halls munching potato chips which the girls sold to pay for club activities. Later in the year, the traditional Teacher's Tea was given on a Sunday afternoon.
The administration and faculty were served coffee and cakes while they relaxed to live entertainment. The club's adopted grandparents, who live in a nearby nursing home, received gifts at Christmas time and on their birthdays.

By participation in service and money-raising projects, the Y-Teens fulfilled their purposes as club members: To grow as a person, to grow in friendship with people of all races, religions and nationalities, and to grow in the knowledge and love of God.

FBLA Talent Show Entertained Audience

Georgene Mikash, Anita Skertich, Miss Phyllis Bates, and Mrs. Donn Kaupke leave for Chicago.

An all school talent show, with the teachers as well as the students participating in the fun, was a project on top of the list of success for FBLA. The club's ice cream social was also a popular occasion. Other projects which were of more importance to the members in their chosen fields were guest speakers who attended various meetings throughout the year and the field trips. The sponsors, Miss Phyllis Bates and Mrs. Donn Kaupke, business teachers, aided the club members in their projects.

Installation, which was the organization's first project of the school year, was held November 17; new officers installed were Mary Lou Gorsich, president; Georgene Mikash, vice-president; Pam Krucik, secretary; and Anita Skertich, treasurer.

Future Business Leaders of America set high goals for their 45 members. Such goals, to develop effective business leadership, responsibility, ability to work with others and to develop well-rounded personalities, set an excellent standard of behavior to which the club adhered.

Willingness to abide by the club's goals and purposes, maintaining a C average, a business course curriculum, and a sincere interest were factors which constituted the requirements of students who wished to join FBLA. Enthusiasm and the acceptance of responsibility maintained a student as a member in good standing. Thus, the Future Business Leaders of America has progressed through its short life of two years to become one of HHS's outstanding service organizations.

Founded in 1958, F.T.A. was named in honor of Mrs. Marion York, a kindergarten teacher at Johnston school, by last year's graduates, since she had taught in the Highland school system for 20 years and was very popular with many students.

Goals and purposes of the Future Teachers of America, sponsored by Miss Alpha Braunwarth, Latin instructor, were to encourage an interest in teaching as a career and to provide opportunities for student participation in exploratory teaching.

An outstanding project of the year, and one which is an annual event, was the presentation of two $50 scholarships to two seniors. Certain requirements were to be met in order to be eligible for the F.T.A. scholarship; each scholarship was for a prospective teacher, one interested in teaching elementary school and the other in teaching secondary school material.

Speakers from various fields of teaching spoke to F.T.A. members about their professions. The programs opened new fields of interest in teaching and encouraged students to enter fields not often thought of.

Club officers elected last spring guided 50 students through a year of fulfillment in student teaching. Carol Gaston served as president for her second term with Joanne Hamilton, vice-president; Karen Soderstrom, secretary; Dennis Howard, treasurer; and Donna Alexander, historian.

Student teaching was open to any junior or senior and introduced them to the teaching profession. Although it was not applicable for graduation, one-fourth credit was given to student teachers.

Teaching affords memorable occasions in the molding of young children's lives. Prospective teachers were able to get a "taste of the teaching life by working side-by-side with a teacher. They were better able to understand what life is like "on the other side of the desk."

El Circulo Espanol's, or the Spanish Club's, biggest project of the year was the float for the Homecoming parade. Entered with the theme "Baran Los Tigres" (Beat The Tigers), the float consisted of a colorful pinata in the shape of a tiger which hung from Highland's goal posts.

During Christmas vacation, the members traveled to Chicago to view the movie, "The Alamo." Plans were then formulated to revisit Chicago to see the renowned Spanish dancer, Jose Greco. Later in the year, a "Spanish spoken only" picnic was proposed for all the members.

Gordon Bassett, president; Dave Smith, vice president; Georgene Mikash, secretary; Roger Moore, Treasurer; Jim Bittner, program chairman; and Mrs. Marsha Sevald, sponsor planned an eventful year for the members. They studied the culture and customs of the Spanish-American countries and acquired a deeper appreciation and understanding of the Spanish world -- its people and its language.

Small Clubs Profited Through Experience

SCIENCE CLUB

Special speakers, research projects, reports from members, trips, and participation in the spring carnival constituted the Science Club's first two years of activity. Founded in 1958 under the sponsorship of Leonard Tews, the club was jointly sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Tews this year.

Members visited the Natural History Museum in Chicago and the Eli Lilly Company, a pharmaceutical laboratory and manufacturing company, in Indianapolis. Research in various fields of science was undertaken by the members; Jim Larrabee reported on the prevention of radiation sickness.

Both sponsors and officers worked to prove that science in any form can be enjoyable and interesting. Led by Bob Witherspoon, president; John Erickson, vice-president; Jim Barenie, secretary; and Jim Deleget, treasurer, the sponsors and 31 members attempted to establish and build more interest in science.

SIGN PAINTERS CLUB

During the 1958 fall semester, students who felt the need of a club such as the Sign Painters organized with the aid of their present sponsor Miss Marjorie Bluhm into the organization as it is known today.

Members since that time have constantly been preparing signs and posters for high school clubs and outside organizations. The club accepted orders ranging from one to forty posters at a time. The posters have advertised everything from "soup to nuts."

Outside organizations were charged only a small fee for the work done. Posters for clubs in school were made at a nonprofit except for the cost of materials. The members endeavored to improve their own commercial talents.

As the 115 choral students will boast, singing was one of the many self-satisfying activities in which they could participate. They learned to sing correctly and to perform a variety of musical literature.

With the Glee Clubs, the senior Choir presented three concerts - the Fall Concert, the Christmas Concert, and the Spring Concert. The Madrigals and the Triple Trio, also under the direction of Mr. Gordon Wilder, made their first appearances adding variety to the concerts.

Efforts of the two selected groups were made entirely on the members' free time, while the Choir and Glee Clubs met during scheduled class periods. Newly organized this year and consisting of eleven members, the Madrigals performed poems set to lively music, or songs called Madrigals. The Madrigals and the Triple Trio, another first-year organization, performed for civic organizations, one of the first being the Kiwanis club's luncheon on December 15.

Soloists from the Choir along with the Madrigals and the Triple Trio displayed their vocal prowess at the regional vocal contest on January 28 at Lew Wallace high school.

On March 3, six schools participated in a music festival held at Merrillville high school. Choral groups assembled from Highland, Griffith, Hobart, Calumet, Dyer, and Merrillville to perform solo numbers but mainly to sing as part of the massed choir under the direction of Russel Mathis.

Highlighting the season was the operetta, "Mikado" by Gilbert and Sullivan, which combined the efforts of all the vocal groups to form the cast.

Today, the band is a large, well-equipped and outfitted, organization. Many improvements have been made since the origin of the band in September, 1953, when its organizer and director, Mr. Edwin Kibiger, moved to Highland. For many years it was only a grade school group participating in various contests and school programs. During the past year, the band has performed for most of the civic groups and on many occasions sponsored by the town, such as the semi-centennial.

Members gave the citizens of Highland many opportunities to see and hear the band as it played at all the home football and basketball games. Proudly displaying their uniforms, members entertained the football fans with half-time performances. The group played at the Christmas and spring concerts and in some school convocations. Members can well be proud of their new and stylish uniforms, for they were obtained through the combined efforts of the band members and their parents.

Each year band members became eligible for the State Solo and Ensemble Contest held in February. The concert band also participated in the Spring Band Contest.

Consisting of 65 students, grades eight through twelve, the Highland concert band was directed by Mr. Kibiger. Members obtained musical accomplishments and appreciation through the performance of good band literature.

Drum Major with Twirlers Headed the Band.

Student directors Gary Moore and Bob Witherspoon combine their talents to lead the band through a rehearsal.

Majorettes Pat Morton, Chuckie Deak and Donna Doetschman and drum major Gary Moore made a flashy quartet leading the band.

HHS boasted three "pep bands" which played with the organized cheering block for the basketball games, urging the team to victory. The "Blue Band" under the direction of Bob Witherspoon and the "Gold Band" under Gary Moore, each represented half of the members of concert band. When the formidable Trojans battled for victory on their home court, either the "Blue" or the "Gold" band set a winning pace for the team with fight songs. With determination and practice, these bands learned background music for most of the cheers; working with the cheerleaders, they did their part in the "Trojan tromp to victory."

The third pep band, the "Away Band," was formed through the leadership and organization of two hard-working seniors, Gary Moore and Tim Blakley. A group of select players practiced extra hours so when the Trojans were visiting team they could be backed with the usual Highland enthusiasm. The members of the "Away Band" were Tom Ayers, Rodney Fozkos, Roger Moore, and Jim Murn.

Director Mr. Edwin Kibiger prepares the group for a public appearance.

Quill and Scroll Unveiled Yearbook Cover

Quill and Scroll, an international honorary organization for high school students who have excelled in journalism and publication activities, was founded in the fall of 1959. It was named the Allen J. Warren Chapter of Quill and Scroll at that time in honor of the outstanding citizenship of the present high school principal.

Among the activities carried out under the auspices of this organization were a soc-hop January 20, to reveal the 1961 SHIELD cover, participation in national writing contests, and the spring banquet to honor outgoing seniors working on publications as well as to name new publication heads for the coming year. Members gave a bake sale to raise funds for the banquet so the individual's cost would not be excessive.

Only three members remained from last year's club, but two juniors and eleven seniors were chosen from the TROJANAL and SHIELD staffs to complement the membership. Pat Adamchik, president, read the society's goals and purposes at a candle-light initiation ceremony in the library on December 5. All members received a copy of the magazine "Quill and Scroll" four times during the school year.

Dean Speicher sponsored the group of 15. Presiding officers for the year were Pat Adamchik, president; Corinna Kaarlela, vice-president; Kitty Lien, secretary; and Bevra Paul, treasurer.

TROJANAL Informed Readers of Past,

Mr. Dean Speicher, adviser; Mary McDermott, editor-in-chief (seated); Jeff Brodine, junior managing editor; and Virginia Lakatos, news editor; study a recent issue's weak and strong points.

November 25, 1958 was a significant date in the short history of the TROJANAL because then the first paper rolled off the press. The newspaper staff, at that time, consisted of 20 enthusiastic, interested students. This year 60 students composed the staff with Mr. Dean Speicher as advisor. Journalism students held major positions, while 46 students worked on news reporting for the paper. This year TROJANAL is a member of the National Scholastic Press Association, Columbia Scholastic Press Association, Indiana High School Press Association, and Quill and Scroll.

Editors discovered coming school events and passed on assignments to staff members; reporters interviewed students, faculty, and prominent Highlanders and then searched for lively words to make their articles sparkle; copyreaders corrected and condensed stories. Untold other tasks fell before, between, and after these few mentioned tasks, before the inevitable, bimonthly sigh of relief when the TROJANAL was printed and distributed.

Subscription cards entitling the holder to 19 issues of the TROJANAL were sold in the early part of the first semester for $1.50. A student was able to obtain a copy of the paper when it was distributed every other Friday during lunch hour for the mere punching of his subscription card.

Several "regulars" appeared in the paper. "All Around School", written by Pat Adamchik, gave an insight into school events. "Sports Smatterings", by Mike Prepsky, was an informal editorial on phases of sports not covered in news stories. "The Shadow" carried a description and silhouette of a well-known boy and a girl, omitting only the names, and "Senior Spotlight" featured interviews accompanied by pictures of various seniors.

Frustrations Produced the 1961 SHIELD

SHIELD was a best-seller last year and with good reason. "The end of the beginning" began a tradition and reputation difficult to maintain. This standard provided a difficult challenge for the 1960-61 staff of approximately 40 people who worked on layout, copywriting, photography, business and typing.

Columbia Press Association and National Scholastic Yearbook Association awarded the 1960 book first place ratings, and it received a second class rating from National Scholastic Press Association. The 1961 SHIELD received honor even before its publication. Artmaster Yearbooks, Incorporated, printer of the book, choose it to be used as a national sample and the colored picture for an advertising booklet cover.

Two weeks at the High School Journalism Institute at Indiana University, made possible by the proceeds of last year's autograph dance, provided a fun-filled and educational vacation for publication heads and assistants during the summer. Students lucky enough to attend the institute received instruction in various phases of publication work - layout, copy writing, editing and business management - and participated in workshops which gave them a clearer insight into the actual compiling of a publication.

Quill and Scroll sponsored a dance January 20 to unveil the SHIELD cover, and, after distribution of books in May, an autograph dance gave students an on-the-spot opportunity to locate friends and collect "John Hancock's."

As a memory book, as a reference for future years, and providing a good public relations medium for HHS by showing what the school is, has, does and offers — this was how the SHIELD served the school. The staff attempted to give a comprehensive accurate historical record of the year, and represent the student body and administration in their respective activities.

Screaming Boosters Inspired Team Support

Booster Club's key words this past year were, "Go you Trojans and win this game!" These words best described the club's main objectives—to support the school athletic events, foster school spirit, and support the cheerleaders both financially and enthusiastically. This was evident during the 1960 sectionals when the club shared the honor with the basketball team and cheerleaders of receiving the Sportsmanship trophy.

Since its founding in 1957, Booster Club has traditionally sponsored the Homecoming dance and queen candidates. Because of the efforts of committee chairmen and members, the dance and the preceding activities were successful in honoring the football team the Homecoming queen, and her court.

Noticeable throughout Highland were the products of the club's fund-raising drive. Members were required to sell the blue and white Highland Trojan license plates which have decorated at least 200 cars of HHS boosters. The profits were used for the Homecoming dance and later year functions.

Booster Club strove to build its members into a uniform cheering block. It was a source of pride and provided a sense of achievement to those girls who participated. The block consisted of 100 members clad in blue and gold capes. This brought numerous compliments to the club, its officers, JoAnn Golec, president; Leslie Jones, vice-president; Corinna Kaarlela, secretary; and Pat Karlson, treasurer; its sponsors, Miss Martha Nicholson and Miss Marjorie Bluhm, and the school as a whole.

JoAnn Golec and Peg Goolik sew Booster Block capes for games.

Ever New

Ever Modern

SPORTS

Highland High's athletic program looked toward the future by being geared to the ever changing growth of the student body and school.

Last fall the football players ran proudly onto their own field, not a borrowed one. The newly acquired uniforms and brand new football field gave the players a swelling inner pride in Highland which drove the "gridders" on to victory.

While the "padded players" battered their heads together, the "harriers" sprinted onto victory at their meets. As the season came to a close, the football players and the extremely successful cross country boys looked ahead to a prosperous basketball season.

If you've ever looked over your shoulder from the new football field, you'll have caught a glimpse of the gym, looming on the horizon, where modernness is also expressed. The spaciousness gave one an inward certainty of victory over any invader. Modern facilities for the players urged them to conquer.

With the appearance of spring, a new array of sports became popular.

Everyone--teams and spectators, alike--have brought prestige to the sports traditions newly established at Highland High School. Boys swung bats, practiced pitching, ran hurdles, and leaped over the high jump in their individual specialities.

"Fight on Highland High School... win or lose we'll cheer you, we love you just the same."

Harriers Close Out Season with 4-6 Record

Highland's Cross Country squad in its third year of competition while dipping below .500 for the year, finished in third place at the conference meet behind Gary Wirt and Merrillville. Coach Merlin Clinkenbeard's leading Harrier was Russ Gordon who consistently led the HHS squad, followed by Jody Stofko, Lowell Boswell, and Jerry Davis.

Golfers Get First Conference Title Shot

With Rich Abblett and Jay Cee winner Ron Quigg back to lead the Trojan golfers, things looked bright on the Highland greens.

Coach Bob Royer, who took over this year for Sam Sopp as golf coach, found an experienced squad losing only one man from last year's team which compiled an impressive 17-5 record. Veteran team leaders Ron Quigg and Rich Abblett averaged 42 strokes per nine holes in the 1960 season with Jerry Woodfill, John Starcevic, and Charles Steffy averaging about 45 strokes per nine holes. Ron Quigg shot the 1960 low of 37 on the Lake Hills course.

This year's team consisted of Rich Abblett, Ron Quigg, John Starcevic, and Charles Steffy with Mickey Blink and Mike Steffy alternating as fifth man. Last year the team finished in the top ten in the lake county sectionals at LaPorte.

During the past summer two of Highland's golfers placed high in tournament play, demonstrating the team's overall ability. Rich Abblett took second place in the under-eighteen division in Gary where the winner shot a record 4 under par of 67. And Ron Quigg received a three-day, all-expense paid, vacation at Purdue as the Lake County representative in the state finals of the Jay Cee tournament. Going into the last day Ron was tied for second place and, except for trouble on the last three holes of the final eighteen, would have been one of Indiana's four representatives to the huge national Jay Cee tourney held in Iowa. However, he did finish seventh in the state.

Junior Mickey Blink and sophomore Mike Steffy, both of whom averaged between 45 and 50, gave the team a fifth man capable of keeping the team average low and coach Royer an experienced nucleus on which to build next year's squad.

Trojan gridders, who formed the second heaviest line in the Calumet Region (averaging 225 pounds per man), were unable to produce an effective offense until the last three games. The backfield, which included three-year veteran Mike Burroughs and two-year veteran Jim Watson, scored 120 points during the year, 66 in the last three games.

GRIFITH- In the Calumet Conference Football-o-Rama, the Trojans struck fast on a 26-yard pass from Jim Watson to Mike Burroughs in the opening minutes and managed to hang on for a 6-0 victory. DYER- Pass defense proved to be the chink in Highland's armor as the Indians scored in the second and third quarters on 77 and 49-yard pass plays. Their final tally came on an interception of a last-minute, desperation earning a 21-0 HHS loss. CROWN POINT- Bulldog speed was the undoing factor at Crown Point field as the hosts scored three times in the first quarter and claimed a 34-13 win. Touchdowns: Watson (1), Brodine (1). PENN TOWNSHIP- Down two touchdowns in the fourth quarter, Trojans' Joe Smothers blocked a punt and ran 52 yards for HHS's first score. Moments later Mike Burroughs took a pass from Jim Watson and ran 66 yards to produce a 12-all tie. But Trojan rally ended when Penn's Larry Vander Heyden intercepted a Highland pass and went 27 yards for the final tally as Penn won 19-12.

CLARK- Jeff Brodine's first-half touchdown proved fruitless as Clark scored twice in the second half to win 14-7. LOWELL- Ron Quigg recovered a blocked Lowell punt to score the Trojans' only touchdown as the Devils downed HHS 12-9. T.F. SOUTH found itself completely outclassed as it fell 34-7, extending the Trojan losing string to six games. Touchdowns: DeMuth (1). GARY EDISON- In the first game on Highland's new field, the Trojans scored three times in the fourth quarter to record their first victory 25-19. Touchdowns: DeMuth (2), Brodine (1), Messner (1). GARY WIRT- In the mud at Gary, Jeff Brodine and Bill DeMuth combined efforts for two quick touchdowns in the first quarter producing the second varsity win 20-6. Touchdowns: DeMuth (1), Brodine (1), Manno (1). HAMMOND TECH- In the long-awaited homecoming the Trojans scored in the first, second and fourth quarters to claim its last victory with a 21-0 win before Queen Linda Bewley and her court. Touchdowns: Brodine (1), Manno (2).

Highland halfback Jeff Brodine is thrown for a loss as Blazer linemen "red dog" to break up play in first quarter action.

Lacking in both size and experience, the junior varsity football squad developed quickly enough to give Hammond High and Rensselaer two close, hard-fought games, but lost each time by identical 7-0 scores. Although the young Trojans were beaten rather badly in their first game, they were playing the Chesterton varsity which was composed mainly of juniors and seniors.

This season's JV team, led by Carl Topor and Al Manno - brothers of varsity team members - and Bob Skelly in the backfield with Lannie Wells and Rich Spickert leading the Trojanite linemen, never gave up even when losing. The junior Trojans won two of 10 games but held strong East Chicago Washington and Hammond High teams to one-touchdown victories. The season's high point came in the final two games as a 32-25 victory over T.F. South and the close 14-7 loss to East Chicago Washington.

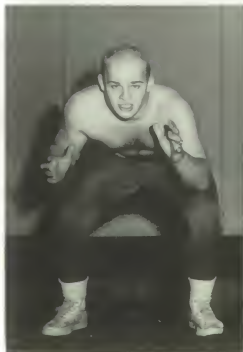

Coach Bob Day felt that the first losses were due mainly to inexperience, as many of the freshmen boys had never competed in organized football previously, and that the game with Chesterton's varsity (38-0, Chesterton) might have been much closer had it been played at a later date. The boys, however, showed great spirit and teamwork throughout the season, which is half the battle in football, and all are eagerly awaiting next year and a shot at making the varsity traveling squad. The JV will remain almost completely intact next season, as over fifty per cent of the players were freshmen, and will lose only a few boys to varsity play - the dream of every JV squad member.

Wrestling - the only sport in which every boy, regardless of his size, has a chance to win - has been at Highland only two years and is gaining rapidly in popularity. . . . Thirty-five enthusiastic eighth graders worked out three nights per week after the season's end in preparation for next year; this year's squad had 22 meets-12 varsity and 10 junior varsity plus two tournaments.

Finally the new wrestling mat arrived, after a tedious wait, and HHS had its first of three home meets. The Trojans met a good Portage team and claimed their first win of the year with a score of 30-14, ending their five-game losing stretch.

As the Trojan team tied for third with Merrillville, behind Lowell and Gary Edison, in the Calumet Conference meet, senior Bob Vuxinic and junior Steve Shanklin copped first place conference honors for their respective classes of 138 and 112 pounds. Heavyweight Pete Holliday earned a second place in his class as he lost the championship match in a double overtime on a questionable decision.

After absorbing five early season defeats as the younger boys and first year wrestlers gained experience, the Trojans suddenly came to life with a 30-14 victory over Portage. A narrow two-point loss to Gary Edison, the second ranked team in the conference, set the stage for the 36-14 win over Hammond Tech. In the last game of the year, before a large home crowd, the grapplers forced Hammond High to make an all-out effort before the Trojans fell 25-18 in a close match.

Seniors Bob Vuxinic (10-2-2), Ron Manno (7-4), Pete Holliday (10-3), and junior Steve Shanklin (8-4) led the matmen through their 3-10 season, while next year Coach Day hopes to rely upon Shanklin, Al Manno (6-5), Tom Garbett (6-7) and Dean LaMantia.

Trojans Finish 7-14,

After maintaining a .500 record for the first two-thirds of the season, the Trojan team lost its last nine games, which included three conference losses causing it to fall from first place to a tie for third in the final conference standings.

Marked by misfortune, the season saw starters Tom Topor and Mike Prepsky forced to drop out as a result of injuries. The final blow came in the Morton game when scoring ace Jerry Mussatt received a painful hip injury which caused him to miss the last six regular season contests.

Although the season began with a 57-43 loss to Hammond Tech, under the guidance of Coach Randy Sheets the Trojans came back three nights later with a 63-58 victory over Concord in which Jerry Mussatt scored 30 points, high for the season. After a seven point loss to Griffith and a five point win over Dyer on two successive nights, came a 48-44 victory over Portage for Highland's second conference win of the year. Following a one point loss at Chesterton the Trojans, with Jerry Mussatt scoring 22 points to take game scoring honors, defeated Rensselaer, avenging last year's only regular season loss. With the 62-49 loss to Lebanon the boys took a much-needed Christmas vacation.

On their first outing of the new year at the Gary Edison Tournament, the Trojans upset the host Blazers 44-42 before bowing 59-42 to Morton in the final game. Returning to conference play at Lowell, the varsity downed the Red Devils 61-49 to take sole possession of first place in the conference. The hard-fought victory over Crown Point (73-55) raised the season mark to 7-5 before the tables turned and the Highlanders lost nine straight: to De Motte (55-53); Hobart (86-66) even though John Starceovich scored 24 points for his career high; Morton (66-60), East Gary (73-58), Culver M. A. (50-44), T.F. South (57-54), Merrillville (69-60), Gary Wirt (72-55), and East Chicago Roosevelt (56-44) in the sectionals to end the year with a 7-14 record.

Junior varsity competition, largely overshadowed by varsity enthusiasm, provided the training ground and experience necessary for next year's highlighted team; it also produced such players as Curt Darnell, Dave Smith, Joe Smothers and Jeff Brodine, who saw limited varsity action at the season's end. JV players also learned new patterns and styles of ball while as freshmen and in grade school they were mainly interested in fundamentals.

Teams that practice side by side during the course of a season naturally develop an intense rivalry, and this year's varsity and JV were no exceptions. Since the younger boys couldn't actually compete with the varsity on the floor, they vied with won-lost records: JV won the annual contest by posting an 11-6 record. The junior Trojans with Curt Darnell, Joe Smothers, Ed Maurushes and Mike Vrabel alternating on the front line had a definite height advantage in almost every game. When teamed with speedy Jeff Brodine, Dave Smith and Jim Katona as guards, they had the necessary winning combination.

Dave Smith, averaging 9.7 points per game led the junior varsity in scoring with the remaining members of the first seven all scoring between five and seven points per game.

After losing the season opener to Hammond Tech's Tigers, the JV's scored three straight victories over Concord (35-34), Griffith (44-40), and Dyer (32-29), for their longest winning streak of the season. By Christmas the young Trojans had compiled a respectable 3-2 record. During the last half of the year, they continued their winning ways by taking four of their first six games before the long awaited trip to Culver Military Academy where they fell 47-33. In their last three outings the Trojans managed two wins, which included a 32-29 squeaker in the season ender at Gary Wirt.

Sophomore pitcher Al Mosely seems to be pondering instructions he has just received from head baseball coach Merlin Clinkenbeard.

Trojan baseball fans, disappointed with last year's results, saw only one returning regular, senior second baseman John Cutean, since first sacker Gary Moore decided not to come out and veterans Mike Burroughs and Greg Parker were unable to participate.

With a large number of underclassmen on the squad, coach Merlin Clinkenbeard substituted frequently to give all the boys a chance to prove themselves. To do this he used two boys alternately at every position in the infield with Roger Moore and Carl Harris at third, Doug Stamper and Al Manno at short, John Cutean and Tony Biondi at second, Bill DeMuth and Carl Topor at first and Ron Manno and Chuck Yates behind the plate. Since graduation claimed last year's front-line pitchers Pat Pope and Dick Johnson, sophomores Allan Mosely and Dave Smith and senior Dick Skertich shared mound duties this year, while Tony Reyna, Harold Downing, Jim Katona, Larry Carlson, and Mike Cook roamed Highland's outfields.

Crown Point was the scene of the season opener on April 10 followed by Highland's home opener with perennial powerhouse Hammond High on April 11. The men of Troy's first conference game found the always-tough Griffith Panthers playing Highland's Masephol field, followed in quick succession by conference opponents Portage, Merrillville, and Dyer. After a short rest from conference warfare, during which time they played Western Division opponent Hammond Morton on the Governors' home field. The Trojans journeyed to East Gary and began the last half of their conference schedule which included games with Lowell and Gary Wirt at Highland, and Gary Edison on the Blazer diamond. With eight conference games plus five Western Division teams the Trojans' schedule was well filled, but coach Clinkenbeard managed to squeeze in independent Crown Point, Chesterton and T. F. North to give the Highland team the roughest schedule possible.

Gene Spichard, one of Coach Kaupke's promising juniors, seems to be suspended in mid-air during broad jump competition.

State finalist Jerry Mussatt shows high jump form that rated him a fifth place in the state in his first year of competition.

Hopes to Improve Last Year's 4-2 Record

Front Row: T. Schuur, D. Smith, T. Garbett, D. Patterson, D. Fandrei, B. Skelly, T. Ayres. Row Two: G. Spichard, J. Brodine, J. Irby, J. Davis, H. Slankowski, H. Mathews, T. Swisher, R. Gordon. Row Three: Mr. Donn Kaupke, coach; J. Bullock, J. Thomas, J. Mussatt, J. Smothers, G. Gray, W. Norman, D. Miller, B. Skertich, L. Boswell, T. Halfman, G. Kyle.

Although primarily composed of underclassmen, the track team showed promise for the future. The only area which didn't use underclassmen was the hurdles where senior Jerry Irby dominated competition. Last year he and Bill Richardson shared second spot behind graduated Wayne Clark.

Led by slender Jerry Mussatt, who placed second in the sectional and fifth in the state high jump last year and junior Dennis Fandrei, one of the better milers in the region, the Trojans hoped to capture two events.

In the field competition (high jump, pole vault, shot put, and broad jump) junior Joe Smothers was the number one man in the shot put and broad jump while Tom Ayers was front runner in the pole vault. Sophomore Dave Smith ran a close third in the high jump behind seniors Jerry Mussatt and Glenn Gray. John Bullock, who ran the 440 as number one man, a position which he shared with senior Dan Miller; Jeff Brodine, who ran the 100 and 200; and Tom Garbett in the 880 rounded out the contingent of underclassmen.

Coach Donn Kaupke's mile and half-mile relay teams, which had Joe Thomas, Bob Skelly, Jeff Brodine, and Bob Skertich on the half-mile team with Dennis Fandrei, Dan Miller, John Bullock and Russ Gordon on the mile team, again competed in the Rensselaer relays in the B Division (relay teams were divided according to school enrollment and years of competition) on May 2.

Senior hurdler Jerry Irby sails over on way to a second place finish in 120-yard high hurdle event in Lowell meet.

Cheerleaders Urged Fans to Support Teams

VARSITY CHEERLEADERS: Patty Peterson, Carolyn Hall, Janet Hall; Peggy Goolik, captain.

JV CHEERLEADERS: (front to back) Cathy Parker, Anita Morris, Bobbie Brannen, Mel MacKenzie.

EIGHTH GRADE CHEERLEADERS: Peggy Brannen, Carol McCarthy, Linda Colins, Judy Taylor.

Cheerleaders have become an almost indispensable part of high school football and basketball. Leading the students in backing the team, they had the power of creating or destroying school spirit and good sportsmanship among the spectators. The 12 HHS cheerleaders this year again took upon themselves the task of guiding the students in loudly expressing encouragement to the team, and win or lose, "patting them on the back" for their efforts.

It was not easy to be or become a cheerleader. In the spring a committee of Booster Club, Student Council, and faculty members selected four cheerleaders from the 20-some girls that tried out in each division. Alternates were also chosen, who replaced any cheerleader who may have been inconvenienced. The varsity cheerleaders made use of this practice when Carolyn Hall injured her knee. Janada Radford stepped in and substituted for Carolyn while she recuperated. All girls maintained a C average. If the average slipped below a C, the girl was suspended for six weeks or until her grades again supported a C average.

Over 900 cheerleaders attended the statewide fourteenth Annual Cheerleaders' conference at Indiana University. Miss Martha Nicholson, faculty sponsor, drove four varsity cheerleaders to Bloomington in early November for this activity-packed day. I.U. cheerleaders performed; Jeanie Lee Originals, manufacturer of cheerleading outfits in Goshen, Indiana, presented a style show, and the cheerleaders participated in a huge scale cheer-leading contest.

Labor Day marked the date for valuable pre-season training for varsity girls. They rode in the biggest parade Whiting has ever had and yelled cheers from a decorated car in a motorcade with other cheerleaders.

Cheerleaders bought their own outfits which were theirs to keep and care for. Purchased by the Booster Club, the sweaters were kept for use in the coming years.

Lettermen Sponsored Work Day in the Fall

Lettermen's Club was organized in 1959 with the aid of sponsors, Mr. Kenneth Sypult and Mr. Roland Sheets "To aid in making a better school and help with any school activities." Eligibility for membership was determined by participation in various sports with each sport having its own requisite.

Tom Topor was elected president, while Dan Miller served as vice-president, and Mike Burroughs again assumed the post of secretary-treasurer. Order was maintained at meetings by Pete Holliday, sergeant-at-arms.

Work Day in October was the first fund raising project for the club. An announcement in the school and local newspaper notified citizens that members of the club would be available for any maintenance or clean-up work. Residents were most cooperative by calling for appointments. Several groups worked at chores such as window washing, cleaning basements, raking leaves, and washing and polishing cars. Voluntary donations were made to the organization.

Ushering and passing out programs at basketball games was another service rendered to the school. Lettermen also lined the entry-way as the basketball team came on the floor for warm-up practice. They proudly displayed their sweaters and jackets as they made a vivid border around the cheering block during sectionals.

April 7 marked the highlight of the Lettermen's social activities; the long-awaited semi-formal finally arrived. Not only the school, but the entire community has benefited from the worthwhile performances of these athletes.

Lettermen Greg Griswold and Steve Gazdich clear gym floor of debris thrown by cheering spectators during halftime of the Morion game in preparation for second half activities.

“Mistletoe Magic” and Extra-Curricular

Athletics for high school girls—the Girls' Athletic Association—stimulates the extra-curricular physical education of girls. To obtain membership in GAA, the girls were required to take a series of skill tests. Through participation in organized and outside activities, they had to earn a minimum of points to maintain their membership. Organized activities consisted of baseball, bowling, tumbling, volleyball, and basketball.

Participation in various activities of the club gained points for the girls, which had their due awards. Members earning 150 points were entitled to a sweater, and accumulation of 250 points meant a GAA letter; a wall plaque constituted the highest award given for 350 points.

Led by their president, Mary Beth Miczalek, the near one hundred girls planned several activities during the year. Mary Beth was assisted by Sandy McCormack, vice-president; Valerie Pope, secretary; Pam Patterson, treasurer, and Mrs. Anne Matthew, sponsor.

Members sold candy and cookies to earn money for the annual GAA semi-formal; this year's theme was “Mistletoe Magic.” Couples danced to the music of Henry Kaynor and his band under a cascade of green and white decorations, with a springling of holly and trees, mistletoe and bells.

Parents' Night gave the girls an opportunity to display their talents in various forms of athletics: basketball, volleyball, tumbling. Cookies and punch were served in the cafeteria following the program.

Basketball was a popular and exhausting sport chosen by GAA members to help earn points for letters and other awards.

Drifters Defeat Double - Dribblers to Take

Ron Manno (11) looks hopefully as Dick Skertich (1) and Harry Mathews battle for the ball in the tournament championship game.

With the end of the basketball season, came the annual intramural basketball tournament. The teams, which were limited to two varsity basketball players each, competed at noon with two games running simultaneously, one on each of the two adjacent courts in the gym.

This year's tourney took three weeks to complete with three divisions, one for eighth graders, one for freshmen, and one for the sophomores, juniors, and seniors.

Top-seeded were the Drifters and the Misfits; after two rounds with only four teams left, it appeared that these two would meet in the finals. Then there were the Double-Dribblers headed by Dan Miller, Tom Curran, Ron Gregor, Tom Hedges, and Harry Mathews. And down the Misfits - John Starcevic, Jack Newell, Ron Quigg, Charles Steffey, Bob Hadley - went in a 24-21 loss. The other co-favorite, the Drifters, moved into the finals with a slow 17-12 win over the Buckeyes made up of Corky Darnell, Ed Maurushes, Dick Messner, Tony Biondi, and Leon Poole. In the finals the Drifters pulled away from the Double-Dribblers to win by a 44-37 margin. Bob Skertich led the Drifters scoring 19 points, while brother Dick followed with 8 tallies. The Double-Dribblers' high man was Tom Curran with 12 points.

In the ninth grade tourney, the Flintstones-Carl Topor, Lannie Wells, Rick Spickard, Mike Cook, and Larry Sandridge beat the Panthers 23-16. The runner-up Panther team consisted of Dave Leyba, Herb Marsh, Pat McShane, Tom Szabo, Jim Hardesty, and Chris Boroughs. Eighth grade tournament winners were the Fizzies - John Gaston, Keith Kasbaum, Tim McDonald, Chuck Wagner, and Pat Huettner.

During regular season play, in which basketball players are ineligible to compete, Ron Manno, Cecil Fitzgerald, Mickey Mulholland, Dennis Fuller, Dave Ritchie, and Hersh Ivers took "A" League honors; Dwight Worker, Bill Vander Haar, Tom Burke, Mike Mulligan, Pete Bandernicks, and Chris Boroughs took "B" League's first place; and Rex Burton, Bob Carbury, Dave Ripley, David Asbatts, and Rich Reynolds won "C" League's top spot.

PEOPLE

Who goes to Highland high school? Students of many nationalities, religious groups, and economic walks of life attend Highland high. This can be explained, since Highland is situated in the Calumet Region, which has a high percentage of foreign-born or first-generation Americans.

Highland high has a truly cosmopolitan character in its enrollment of 1105 students. They come from public, parochial, and private preparatory schools. These provide richer and broader educational experience for the students. The individuals' backgrounds also add much to the color and vitality of high school life.

Exchange of library services, and the use of nearby agencies such as museums, and theaters bind the high school and the community ever closer.

HHS is noted for its close, democratic relationship between students and faculty. The faculty are not only professionally competent in their respective fields of study, but they also show a sincere concern for the growth of the students as individuals. The annual open-house in the fall and many opportunities for informal meetings give the students the close personal contacts with the faculty which are among the assets of a small high school.

It must be forever changing if Highland high is to remain alive. And many people are continually engaged in shaping its destiny-administration, faculty, students, alumni, parents, and the community as a whole. Highland high looks forward with confidence to its future growth in physical development and enrollment.

Administrators Provided Necessary Tools

School Board members, Dr. John Sanik, Jr., president; Mr. John H. Strange, secretary; Mr. Gordon T. Heim, treasurer; carefully

discuss allotment of funds and plans for Highland schools for the 1960-61 school year in the superintendent's office.

Mr. Lon P. Monbeck relaxes during his busy day of official duties.

Administrators adhered to the modern trend of the day. Smooth and efficient organization and operation of the town's school system was in the capable hands of the Highland School Board headed by Dr. John Sanik, Jr., Gordon T. Heim, treasurer and John H. Strange, secretary, constituted the remaining board members who worked with constant reference to the state educational laws to achieve the goals of the ever-expanding community.

Appointed by the town board of trustees the school board carried on the responsibilities of securing a capable faculty and maintaining a budget to provide the school with modern and necessary facilities and equipment. The new 13-classroom addition to the high school in 1960 was only one realization of the plans and efforts of these devoted individuals.

Aiding in the operations of the school board was Mr. Lon P. Monbeck, superintendent of Highland schools. Two years prior to the launching of his career, he received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Manchester College. In 1936 Mr. Monbeck left Columbia University with a Master of Arts Degree in education and began his administrative career when he became principal of Main Elementary School. He sought further education at the Universities of Michigan, Chicago and Indiana before taking his present position in 1950.

Mr. Monbeck is associated with the American Association of School Administrators and the National Education Association. He headed the administrative staff in setting and maintaining high goals, standards and policies.

This important position-holder also enjoys his leisure hours. Mr. Monbeck devoted much of his free time to civic organizations as a member of the Chamber of Commerce, Highland Lions Club, and Garfield Masonic Lodge in Hammond. During his vacation weeks, the superintendent visits northern Minnesota for relaxing hours of fishing.

for Education & Eased Crowded Conditions

Principal Allen J. Warren keeps busy running a modern high school.

Mr. John P. Fruth begins his day by checking attendance records.

With young ideas and original thinking a growing administration has created an atmosphere of aggressive leadership and academic excellence. Directing the activities of the faculty and student body was Principal Allen J. Warren.

Graduated from Ball State Teacher's College in Muncie, Indiana, Mr. Warren was associated with Kappa Delta Pi and Phi Delta Theta, national education honoraries. He completed additional graduate work at Purdue, Ball State, and Butler University. He received his Bachelor of Science degree and, in 1951, received a Master of Arts degree.

Out from behind the desk Mr. Warren was a sports enthusiast and present at most Trojan athletic contests. He is also a member of the Masonic Lodge, Kiwanis Club, and, consequently, a Key Club sponsor.

Mr. Robert E. Day, assistant principal, attended Purdue University and Ball State Teacher's College, and received both his Bachelor of Science and Master of Science degrees.

Affiliated with athletic clubs, B Club and I.A. Club in college, Mr. Day carried his interests into high school teaching. He coached junior varsity football and was head coach for the wrestling team. He took time from his busy schedule to sponsor Student Council, Monitors, and student parking.

Mr. Day enjoys fishing, golf, and hunting during his free moments and is also a member of the Lions Club of Sheridan, Indiana.

Mr. John P. Fruth, attendance officer, directed counseling in academic problems related to credits, scholastic standing, and qualifications for graduation in addition to his duties of dealing with attendance problems.

Attending Manchester College in North Manchester, Indiana, Ball State Teacher's College, and Indiana University, Mr. Fruth earned both Bachelor of Science and Master of Science degrees.

Mr. Robert E. Day, assistant principal, helps in administration.

Personnel Helped Students Solve Problems

Mrs. Annabelle Shone, Dean of Girls, offers her help in guidance.

Endless questions and the constant ringing of the telephone were characteristic of the school's office. Mrs. Laurene Hasselbring and Mrs. Grace Riechers, Principal Allen J. Warren's secretaries, were confronted with almost every problem imaginable. Questions ranged from, "Has anyone found a silver pen?" to "What time does the bus leave for tonight's game?". Students facing all types of crises came to the center of everything, the office, for the solution.

Mrs. Hasselbring handled the money while Mrs. Riechers as registrar was in charge of the students' records. Clubs funds, class earnings, book rental, and lunch money were assigned to Mrs. Hasselbring. During the routine busy day the office could be compared to the information center at Grand Central. The endless questions and confused faces prevented it from ever having a dull moment.

Farther back in the administrative offices was the office of Mr. Lon P. Monbeck's secretaries, Mrs. Eleanor Tirpak and Mrs. Lois Foltz. Their jobs include reams of correspondence and filing, and serving as receptionists.

Mrs. Annabelle Shone, Guidance Director and Dean of Girls, was another busy person around school. Besides the important duty of counseling college bound seniors, she performed manifold other tasks. The end of each semester was an especially busy time, since she served as an assistant to Mr. Warren in scheduling the students in grades 9-12. She also assisted Mr. John Fruth in the PSAT and National Merit Scholarship tests for juniors and seniors. A member of the Hobart's Player Guild, she enjoyed being a former sponsor of the Dramatics Club. She also served as an advisor for Career Day, College Night, and the Leadership Conference.

As a personal counselor, Mrs. Shone opened her doors to any girl with problems who wished to talk to her.

Mrs. Grace Riechers and Mrs. Laurene Hasselbring, Mr. Warren's secretaries, enjoy a peaceful moment in their busy schedule.

Mr. Monbeck's secretaries, Mrs. Eleanor Tirpak and Mrs. Lois Foltz, combine their efforts to make the office run smoothly.

and Maintained Attractive Surroundings

Mrs. Eileen McCormack, school nurse, spends free time in her office completing health records and charts.

Enjoying a leisurely coffee break, custodians, Mr. Tremse, Mr. DeVries, Mrs. Kaczmarek, Mr. Drake and Mr. Jackson discuss the needs of the school.

Keeping a constant vigil on the physical well-being of the student body, the school nurse Mrs. Eileen McCormack and cooks worked together in striving to maintain the health, comfort and shipshapeliness of almost 1100 students during the school year. At the same time the custodians labored toward cleanliness and general upkeep of the premises.

Earaches, colds, upset stomachs and countless other minor ailments were the main reasons any students tramped down to the nurse's office on a routine day. . . a routine day, that is to say, a day no more exciting or nerve-racking than usual. But in the course of her duties Mrs. McCormack gave T.B., ear, and eye tests so that a fairly complete medical record of each student could be kept on file for future reference and maintained a careful watch on the spread of any disease so that it could be checked in the school.

If the long, impatient lunch lines didn't attest to the cooks' epicurean abilities, then HHS had students who were either too lazy to pack lunches or were obsessed with the pains of standing hungrily in line to buy their lunch. At first glance it seemed that octopus had been employed behind the counter and in the kitchen and washing area. The cooks were everywhere at once, proficient in the duties by which the cafeteria was smoothly run - cooking, serving, and cleaning up. The cafeteria not only operated for the benefit of the students but also for visitors, faculty and other school employees. Those who wished to fill themselves with wholesome, nourishing food found a variety of selections every day of the week. A well-planned menu (it was prepared far in advance) let students select a number of side orders or the standard meal for the day.

Maintaining Highland's physical attractiveness were the custodians. Salting the walks in the winter and cutting the lawn in fair weather were only two of the myriad tasks they have taken on annually.

Behind the scenes of the noon-hour rush are Mrs. Gorman, Mrs. G. Hill, Mrs. A. Blink, Mrs. Soderstrom, Mrs. Grass and Mrs. Klarich.

Officers and "Outstanding Seniors" Guided

Research papers and reports challenge Peggy Goolik, Jack Newell and Jamie Sullivan to fulfill their potentials.

Selecting outstanding seniors was a job that took careful consideration and time. Every senior with a C average or above was a potential candidate. One by one, however, students were eliminated by a screening committee consisting of Mr. Allen J. Warren, principal, Mrs. Annabelle Shone, guidance director, and three anonymous teachers who constantly intermingled with the student body.

Criteria for evaluation encompassed the relationships between the student and the school. Their attitudes towards the school, the services they performed, and the dependability shown in carrying out their responsibilities became the road to success for 13 select students but the stumbling blocks of many others.

Scholarship records could not be marred by poor grades or unfavorable conduct. By examining these records and the rating sheets filled out by the faculty, the committee became better acquainted with the students' participation in and responses to classroom activities.

Outstanding seniors not only possessed the qualities of leadership, but they also were good followers. The final 13 included club officers, boys' and girls' state delegates and representatives to conventions and seminars in which HHS participated; these seniors appeared among the athletic teams and publications' staffs as well. In any club or organization their presence was felt. With their contributions they helped maintain the goals and ideals of their respective organizations.

They were also active in extra-curricular activities through which they were able to add to the betterment of the community. In becoming truly outstanding, the students had devoted their time and efforts not only to one concern, but they had also scattered their interests and ideas among the school, their families and their public lives.

Terry Loane points out an amusing passage as he gathers "food for thought" with Gary Moore, Bevra Paul and Bob Witherspoon.

Kitty Lien, Buddy Starceovich and JoAnn Golec discuss problems they are currently studying in required senior courses.

Class of '61 in a Year of Responsibilities

Class officers, Barbara Bell, secretary; Graham Siegel, vice-president; Gary Moore, president; Bill Richardson, treasurer; and sponsors, Miss Nicholson and Mr. Clark, helped the seniors plan a fun-filled year and make preparations for Commencement.

International developments attract Outstanding Seniors Graham Siegel, Barbara Kozak and Carol Gaston in the library.

Through class projects, seniors learned that co-operation was essential to obtain success. Working on the chili supper as juniors, they found the results rewarding as its profits contributed to the success of an even greater effort - presenting the first junior-senior prom. They spent countless hours after school, at night and on weekends transforming the gymnasium into "Almost Paradise."

Homecoming preparations found seniors painting boards and stuffing chicken wire with napkins to complete their float with the theme "Look to the Future!" Then, "Just for fun," in November they planned a hayride, which was climaxed with dancing and refreshments.

Before Christmas, they posed for senior pictures - a mere beginning of the graduation preparations. Finally the proofs came! Some were pleased and some had retakes, but most were eventually satisfied.

College Board exams, endless college applications and counseling sessions haunted class members throughout the year. "Where to go and how to go about getting there" was an unanswered query for many even into the spring.

Early in February the class voted on its motto, colors, flower and gift to the school. . . Soon after that seniors were measured for caps and gowns - a concrete step towards June 9 when the first class to complete four years at Highland would gather for the last time and receive their diplomas.

Each member made his contribution, whether big or small, to the school and community. Some obtained the education necessary for their future occupations through the experience and knowledge gained in high school. Others have just begun to scratch the surface. The diploma they received in June will be only the foundation for further studies to determine the paths of their future.

Prom Flurry Encouraged Juniors to Begin

Mary Anne Lomberger, secretary; Donelle Bokich, treasurer; Reid Carlson, president; and Sue Bassett, vice-president, led the junior class, sponsored by Mr. Robert Kellam and Miss Mary Youman, in honoring the June graduates with the traditional junior-senior prom.

Freshmen just begin to learn, sophomores know a little more, but juniors have grasped the concepts of high school life!

They organized quickly and elected class officers in the latter part of September. Reid Carlson served as president with Sue Bassett, vice-president; Mary Ann Lomberger, secretary; and Donelle Bokich, treasurer. Miss Mary Youman and Mr. Robert Kellam sponsored the class.

Keeping with tradition, the juniors were to give a prom in the spring. Early in the year, Harry Slamkowski was selected prom chairman, and the date for the prom was set as May 20. With this incentive, no task was actually toil. They set to work and planned money-making projects to insure the success for the biggest social event of the year.

Their first endeavor was selling Highland high sweatshirts, which became very popular with underclassmen. In October, they sponsored a soc-hop celebrating the victory of a previous football game.

November 4 brought the long-awaited Homecoming. The class' feeling of supremacy was further concreted when they entered the prize winning float in the parade. "Hold That Line," the theme of the float, was appropriate for the victories scored in the Homecoming and remaining football season.

One of the largest class projects was a spaghetti supper given prior to the Highland-Crown Point basketball game on January 17. Each class member sold three tickets, and the girls furnished desserts for the supper. Following the supper, pastries were sold at a bake sale.

Finally came the long-awaited event, the goal of their year's efforts -- the prom. Competition between the junior and senior classes disappeared as the juniors provided one last memorable occasion for the seniors.

Donelle Bokich sells spaghetti supper tickets to Joe Klarich and Judy Stonebraker.

Plans for Profit

Carol Richardson, Gloria Wheeler and Georgene Mikash sold Highland sweatshirts to raise necessary funds for the class.

Sophomores Climbed 2nd Ring to Find Ideals

Judy Richardson, treasurer; Jim Larrabee, vice-president; Roger Moore, president; Irene Krizman, secretary, and the sponsors, Mrs. Donn Kaupke and Mr. Paul Brummett, meet to discuss plans for the sophomores in the following years of high school.

This year was a time of giving every ounce of hard working ability the sophomores possessed for the school and its activities. Their efforts found their way into many extracurricular activities. Led by their officers, Roger Moore, president; Jim Larrabee, vice-president; Irene Krizman, secretary; and Judy Richardson, treasurer; and their sponsors, Mrs. Donn Kaupke and Mr. Paul Brummett, the sophomores proved their worth in athletic endeavors and encouraged school friends and adults to be loyal, enthusiastic Trojan boosters.

Sophomores worked to renew and strengthen old friendships and gain profits for next year's junior-senior prom by sponsoring a soc-hop before Thanksgiving vacation. Also sponsored by the class was the basketball game of the sophomore boys versus the junior boys and the sophomore girls versus the junior girls. Two weeks later the winners of the first game met the faculty men and women, respectively, in a championship game.

But school is not all play and no work. The Christmas vacation ended much too soon and sent everyone back to the grind of homework and tests. Final exams were upon everyone in less time than it takes to say "Highland Trojans," but the sophomores were prepared. Although there was the age-old story of cramming told after the tests, the sophomores were looking forward to another semester of games, parties, soc-hops and homework.

Second semester brought sectional time during which the sophomores were well represented in the cheering block. Spring "sprung" upon them with the prospect of ordering the long-awaited class rings. After selecting that special ring, each anxious sophomore faced the long wait for his ring which will be delivered in the late summer and the new school year anticipating what status as an "upperclassman" would bring.

Judy Dust seeks guidance from Mrs. Shone in planning her class schedule.

Led by 4 Girls, Freshmen Organized Efforts

Nancy Hoff and Pam Heim learn to use the library card file to find references.

In September, the freshmen, already oriented by a year's experience as eighth graders in a high school, returned to school full of anticipation for the coming year. They met many new friends; graduating students from Our Lady of Grace School attended Highland high as new members, and, in time, were new friends in the class of '64. To start on the right track, they elected class officers using posters, pictures, and buttons in their campaigns. The resulting officers were: Janet Gaston, president; Melanie MacKenzie, vice-president; Kathy Dunfee, secretary; and Cindy Smith, treasurer.

Next they began forming plans for future activities they would sponsor with the aid of their sponsors, Mr. Dale McCauley and Mrs. Leonard Tews. They experienced the problems that can arise when they planned their first money-making project—a soc-hop which was only the start of projects to follow in the next years. Further undertakings included selling cookies to raise money and a Freshman dance for class members and their guests.

As freshmen, they began to see their expectations fulfilled as they joined clubs and worked to become active members. Striving forward, they sought to be accepted as fullfledged participants in school dances and games. They attended their first school formal in December. Boys joined with their upperclassmen to enjoy high school intramurals. Quickly recognized by the upperclassmen as hard workers, full of pep, and enthusiastic, they were no longer regarded as "Freshies," but as upperclassmen of the future.

June will climax an eventful and completely successful year for the new sophomores who are already looking forward to another year with more accomplishments, disappointments, and goals to be realized.

Eighth Graders Anticipated "Freshman-itis" as

Cathy Ryerse, secretary; Chuck Wagner, president; Larry Landis, vice-president; Theresa Boyd, treasurer; and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Graber, sponsors, take time to formulate plans for the eighth grade's activities.

Mr. John Fruth helps Peggy Brannen plan her schedule for high school.

Stepping into the unfamiliar terrain of HHS proved to be a big challenge to these newcomers, but equally as demanding was the fact that they must "do as the Romans," or, in other words, follow and imitate the high school students. If these 265 students were somewhat frightened by high school life, their faces did not show it. They stuck out their chins and assumed a confident attitude as they strode into foreign classrooms and wandered through unfriendly corridors. "Always a smile regardless of the inner bewilderment"—that must have been the motto of the eighth graders as they slowly learned to deal with everyday school problems through painfully funny experience.

Skill was acquired at such new processes as organizing class schedules, electing class officers, and selecting sponsors. Chuck Wagner, served as president with Larry Landis, vice president, as his right-hand man. Cathy Ryerse and Theresa Boyd were secretary and treasurer, respectively; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Graber, also new to the school, served as their sponsors.

They didn't lack school spirit and enthusiasm, as many were seen cheering as loudly at the Varsity games as at their own eighth grade games. They did a good imitation of the upperclassmen in campaigning for class offices, dress, following fads, and the decoration of lockers. Although they were free to join many of the clubs, they did not jump into the swift high school current like fools, but were very careful and conservative in club memberships and school activities.

"Firsts" may label many of the events occurring during this year on the launching pad. As the count-down continued and first soc-hop followed first detention, the eighth graders learned to meet their obligations and realized responsibilities in an attempt to appease the awkwardness of growing up with the satisfaction of accomplishment. . . the accomplishment of being on the threshold of high school. Despite inner anxiety, all eagerly awaited the day when they could step into the building and really be in high school.

Ever New

Ever Modern

ADVERTISING

Our changing world is accented by growth in population, education, and business. A few years ago the population increase developed, in one respect at least, into a major problem. Highland was compelled to build a high school of its own. Soon it was completed and represented the ultimate in educational facilities from the standpoints of equipment, inspirational surrounding and a competent faculty.

We must not be narrow-minded and talk only in terms of explosive growth when speaking of the new school we are privileged to attend. Take a good, long look at the town of Highland. The rate of Highland's constant growth shows the spirit of its residents and businessmen. Successful businesses thrive in our busy town.

Highland, proudly known as the largest town in Indiana, acquired many innovations in recent years. It is a town popping it's buttons and bursting it's classrooms; it has much to be proud of.

Modern super markets, drug stores, and recreational facilities leave little to be desired. So many businesses have expanded that it may seem difficult to keep up with them. Old and established firms have been invigorated and encouraged to stay ahead of the times through competition with the new but forceful businesses that are mushrooming throughout the community.

A parallel may be drawn between the town and it's high school. Both have grown amazingly in their respectively short histories. Neither has reached maturity nor has yet stopped working toward that goal. Highland is truly a town of the future.

The young people you see in these pictures are all on their way to successful careers in one of America's basic industries . . . steel. They decided (as we hope you will decide) to let Inland Steel Company help them plan their future.

Some are gaining knowledge and experience in special trades to become journeyman machinists, carpenters or electricians . . . some are concentrating on certain phases of steelmaking by working in the open hearth shops, the cold rolling mills or the galvanizing lines. Still others are working in laboratories building a sound foundation for a future in steel research.

Inland offers the high school graduate an excellent opportunity to further his education. Employees may participate in a variety of on-the-job training programs, or they can continue their formal education by registering for evening courses offered by local Purdue and Indiana University Extension Centers.

Plan now to investigate the unlimited opportunities for you in steel . . . with the midwest's own steel company . . . INLAND STEEL.

And Suddenly Its All Over ———

Eager to begin preparation of the first deadline, Joanne Hamilton, Louise Schmidt, Kay Wagman, and Sandy Smith wait to be "locked in" for an evening of work.

Under the influence of "pre-deadline panic," copywriters—Sue Ripley, Judi Brannen, Donelle Bokich, Leslie Jones—retreated from the noisy publications' room to find a quiet niche in the hall for writing copy, headlines, and captions.

A break for refreshment was always a welcome occasion in the late-evening sessions of work. Janet Hall and Maureen Bouret (on floor and seated) join in the fun with Pat Adamchik and Sally Sutherin before finishing their deadline work.

SHIELD production began with casual preparations—a tentative dummy, picture scheduling, and advertisement copywriting.

But soon the mysterious world of a first deadline's pressures put everyone on the alert and activity quickened. Late nights at school followed with an enthusiastic flurry of typewriters and harried copywriters searching for a quiet spot to write and re-write captions, headlines, and body copy, while others prepared the material to send to the company.

With the experience that a frantic first deadline gives, the staff, now well acquainted with its duties, settled down to normal life and went through the process of picture scheduling, writing, and editing with a brighter outlook.

Cooperation of students in all phases of production brought the SHIELD to its final deadline in April. Finally the last few pages were on their way to the factory! The staff took a collective sigh and began the wait for May 17 when everyone could see the finished product—the result of a year's work and fun.

Tired feet and waning patience characterized many days of photography. Bob Witherspoon and Gary Moore combined efforts with a Walingier photographer to get pictures of everything from huge clubs in a group shot to academic activities.

Taking a break, SHIELD staff workers have fun too: G. Moore, M. Gorsich, B. Paul, M. Burroughs, K. Wagman, P. Krucik, H. Slankowski, J. Golec, L. Murphy, P. Peterson, and M. Prepsky.

Partly Peterson takes a break from laying out pages to draw a model of the SHIELD cover, which she designed, for the January-Quill and Scroll dance.

With only one way to finish on time, Judi Miller and Jo Anne Golec resort to doing "homework" so they can meet their yearbook deadlines.

A last look, a final check by Bevra Paul and Mr. Speicher, and it's all over. The final pages of the 1961 SHIELD are on their way to the factory in Kansas.

Producing a yearbook is a tedious but rewarding process which could not be accomplished without the cooperation of a great many administrators, instructors, students, parents, and company representatives.

The experience of yearbook work holds valuable personal gains and countless happy memories for staff members, and the finished product as something they will be proud of for years to come.

With the final pages complete, I can only express my appreciation for the faculty, administration, parents and representatives whose cooperation and patience made our task easier and to the entire staff for its invaluable help and doing a wonderful job.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK with a long-term condition has increased by 50% (Department of Health 2000). The prevalence of long-term conditions is also increasing in other countries (e.g. Australia, Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, Taiwan, the USA and the Netherlands) (World Health Organization 2002). the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 1999). The prevalence of mental health problems has increased in all age groups, but the increase has been most marked in the young (Mental Health Foundation 1999).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the mental health needs of young people (Mental Health Foundation 1999). The National Health Service (NHS) has a responsibility to provide services for young people with mental health problems, but the current NHS budget cuts have meant that the services available to young people have been reduced. The NHS has been forced to reduce the number of mental health professionals, and this has led to a reduction in the number of services available to young people. The NHS has also been forced to reduce the number of services available to young people with mental health problems, and this has led to a reduction in the number of services available to young people with mental health problems.
